Rosario Toledo

Cuarteta

Cuarteta takes the audience through a rehearsal of the songs and dances of the “carnival quartet”, a carnival group from Cadiz composed of three or five components, never four.

In this context of role reversal, Rosario Toledo, Inma “La Carbonera” and Eva “La Leбри” insist on dancing backwards, singing backwards and laughing backwards. They do so with their ovaries on their cheeks, their lungs on their noses, their heads on their behinds and their backs on their foreheads. A traditional repertoire that is flipped, reversed, altered, disrupted, contradictory and antagonistic.

“In the process of researching what it means to dance flamenco backwards, we realise how much flamenco is already inverted. We therefore view carnival humour as a way of shaking up the established structure, as a place and time of inversion, where everything can be in front or behind”, explains the artist.
